BIOGRAPHIES

Jim Sanborn

Jim Sanborn was a resident artist at Glen Echo Park from 1973 through 1981. He has gone on to receive numerous awards and grants and to exhibit in major museums in the United States, Asia, and Europe. His works are included in the collections of several major museums, including locally at the National Museum of American Art and the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

His public sculptures—including perhaps his most well-known installation, Kryptos, at the CIA headquarters in McLean, Virginia—can be found in Japan, Taiwan, and many locations in the U.S. Mr. Sanborn's other public artworks in the Washington, D.C., area include Antipodes at the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden in Washington; Coastline at the NOAA Museum of the Sea in Silver Spring, Maryland; Invisible Forces in Arlington, Virginia; and Lingua at the Walter E. Washington Convention Center in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Sanborn graduated from Randolph-Macon College with a double major in art history and sociology and received his master's degree in sculpture from Pratt Institute. A sculptor and photographer, much of his work reflects a confluence of art and science, including installations such as Terrestrial Physics (Museum of Contemporary Art Denver) and Critical Assembly (Gwangju Biennale, South Korea), and his photography series, such as The Radium Clock Series and The Topographic Projections and Implied Geometries Series. Mr. Sanborn is currently developing a new body of museum and gallery works about the global trade in looted antiquities.

In a 2009 piece by The Washington Post's art critic, Mr. Sanborn was described as being “one of Washington's most important artists.” Mr. Sanborn's sculpture, photographs, and drawings are represented by Marsha Mateyka Gallery in Washington, D.C.

Alan Fern

Alan Fern is Director Emeritus of the National Portrait Gallery, Smithsonian Institution. Under Fern's leadership from 1982 to 2000, the gallery's collection doubled to more than 18,000 works and expanded its definition of portraiture to include photography and caricatures. Previously, Dr. Fern had served for 21 years at the Library of Congress. There he held several posts, including Director for Special Collections of the Library and Chief of the Prints and Photographs Division.

Dr. Fern has written and lectured extensively, especially in the history of the graphic arts. He was among the organizers of the Art Nouveau exhibition at the Museum of Modern Art in New York and wrote a chapter for the exhibition catalog.

A native of Detroit, Dr. Fern holds a doctorate in the history of art from the University of Chicago and was a Fulbright scholar at the Courtauld Institute, University of London.

Valerie Ervin

Montgomery County Councilmember Valerie Ervin represents District 5, which includes Kensington, Silver Spring, Takoma Park, and Wheaton. Ervin is chairperson of the Council's Education Committee, which reviews more than half of Montgomery County's operating budget. Elected in 2006, Councilmember Ervin is the first African American woman to serve on the Council. She did not take a traditional path to public service. She grew up in a military family and lived on several military bases throughout the world, but eventually made Montgomery County her home.

Prior to her service on the Council, she was the Dean of Students at the National Labor College in Silver Spring, Maryland. Ervin holds a master's degree in public administration from the University of Baltimore. Councilmember Ervin is a strong supporter of the arts and humanities in Montgomery County.
